

UW Colleges and Extension Restructuring

Access. Affordability. Opportunity.

ACCESS

All UW Colleges will remain open.

Our two-year UW Colleges' campuses are a great option for students interested in a smaller campus. We have locations across the state where students can earn an associate's degree, or use those two years of general education credits to transfer into a four-year UW institution.

UW Colleges offer affordable tuition and admit every qualified student who applies.

Our two-year campuses are critical higher education access points, particularly for first generation, low income, and underserved students.

AFFORDABILITY

Post-integration, we will maintain existing tuition levels for classes currently offered at the two-year institutions to keep them affordable for students and families.

OPPORTUNITY

Our goal is to expand the opportunities available to students. Our four-year comprehensive and research institutions will identify programs and courses they plan to bring to the two-year campuses. This will expand the educational, research, and community partnership opportunities available to all students.

WHAT STUDENTS AND FAMILIES NEED TO KNOW

Apply to the two- or four-year UW campus you wish to attend. Apply today! UW institutions are accepting applications now.

Apply for financial aid when you submit your UW application

Courses and programs will remain the same at the two-year campuses. Our goal is to offer more classes in the future!

You will still be able to transfer between all UW System institutions, just as you can now.
